Megan's HOOKED on PLUMPING

Gorgeous Megan Fox falls victim to the pressure to look perfect

Megan Fox turned more than a few heads while out and about in Studio City, Calif., on April 27 — and not because of her striking beauty. Onlookers couldn't help but notice the actress looked even more like Angelina Jolie than usual, with noticeably new bee-stung lips.

According to New Jersey-based board-certified plastic surgeon Dr. Brian S. Glatt, Megan's plump pout is undoubtedly not natural. "She absolutely looks like she had her lips injected to make them larger," he tells In Touch. "Lips do not generally grow on their own, and hers are clearly fuller than before." Dr. Glatt also explains that the central part of Megan's lips lack definition, and they don't gradually thin out at the corners like natural lips do. "The bottom line is that it appears she got too much filler," Dr. Glatt tells In Touch. "If she had less, she wouldn't look so swollen."

A source close to the actress tells In Touch that Megan, 24, has always been focused on fixing her face, and started using injectables such as collagen and Botox in 2008, while filming Jennifer's Body. "She would get her lips done every two months," reveals the insider. "She is very insecure about her looks in general."

Although Megan — who's currently filming Transformers 3 — hasn't addressed the plastic surgery — suspicions directly, she describes Hollywood as being a superficial place. "If I weren't attractive, I probably wouldn't be working," she says.
